A changing of the dental guard

by Jennifer Willis

Dr. Delvin Hansen recently retired from his dental practice after 40 years. Hansen came to Harvey in 1981, practicing from the clinic next to St. Aloisius Medical Center. Three years later he relocated to the clinic on 9th Street West.

During his tenure in Harvey, he placed his dental practice on hiatus and joined the Air Force in his 50's as a professional performing dental care. During that time, he spent three years in Germany and the final year of enlistment in Minot. Hansen has, also, performed missionary trips to places such as the Ukraine.

One of Hansen's fondest memories was when an elderly lady in Ukraine kissed him for being the nicest dentist she had ever met.

Hansen said that the greatest improvements in dentistry had occurred due to technology. Dental materials have improved, magnification loupes with LEDs made work easier, digital x-rays and computer systems all helped him perform his job more efficiently.

However, Hansen noted that Dr. Marvin Zerr, who worked with him part-time over the past 19 years, was the most important asset to the clinic.

As for his future, Hansen plans to remain in Harvey, but will be going on missionary trips to places such as Mozambique, Africa. Hansen said that he has discovered "lots of things to catch up on" during his free time.

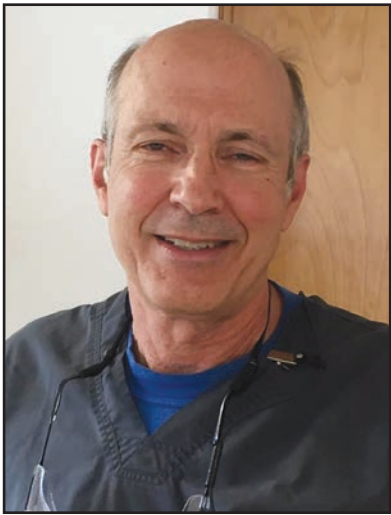

Hansen began thinking about retirement in 2010, however it was only in the last five years that he seriously began seeking someone to carry on the dental practice in Harvey. He said it was difficult to find someone willing to relocate to a rural area. Most people prefer larger cities such as Fargo or Bismarck. However, Dr. Greg Christensen has made Hansen's dream of retirement a reality.

Hansen added that Christensen "will be an asset to the community," and that they share the same practice philosophy.

Meet Dr. Christensen

Dr. Greg Christensen recently purchased Dr. Hansen's practice and began operations on April 1.

Christensen, a native of Chicago, Ill., is a 2004 graduate of Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He has most recently been practicing dentistry in Deer Lodge, Montana. When his friend and fellow dentist, Sterling Stevens, of Cavalier, told him that Hansen's clinic was on the market, he was intrigued and soon traveled to the area for a visit.

Although he grew up in a large city, Christensen had the opportunity to visit his family's farm on the weekends, giving him a great appreciation for the slower life that a rural area offers.

Christensen said he was "impressed with the charming little town" that Harvey is. He noted that the cleanliness and newly-paved streets were attractive elements when considering his move to the area.

When not working, Christensen enjoys many of the activities offered in the area including golf, bird hunting, and fishing. He looks forward to a peaceful life, making new friends, and "working alongside the good, hard-working people in the area."

Students want age requirement raised

by Anne Ehni

Wells County could be the first in the state to increase the legal age to purchase tobacco products. State law allows tobacco purchase at age 18.

At its April 2 meeting, the Wells County Board of Commissioners said it will introduce an ordinance for businesses in its jurisdiction that would raise the minimum age to purchase tobacco products to 21 - but only if the City of Harvey introduces a similar ordinance.

According to Commissioner Stan Buxa, Kotaco in Harvey is outside of the city limits and is the only retail business that is under the jurisdiction of the county.

Members of Harvey High School's P.A.C.T. (Preventing Alcohol Consumption in Teens) attended the meeting and asked commissions to support the group's efforts to prevent the sale of tobacco products to people under the age of 21.

Students Katelyn Voeller, Kassidy Kite and Cassie Faul explained what they perceive is happening in the school: Older students are selling tobacco products, including Juul (a smokeless tobacco product), to younger kids in the school.

They're "basically blackmailing them - selling them for three times what they paid for them," one of the students said.

The students explained to the commissioners that Juuls are difficult to detect because they are smokeless and their vapor does not smell like smoke. The nicotine is inhaled in a vapor that is combined with any number of flavors, such as bubblegum or citrus scents that are not detectable as tobacco.

"Young kids get addicted to tobacco through Juul and then move on to other tobacco products," another student explained.

Joye Stolz, R.N., administrator of the Wells County District Health Unit, told the commissioners that Harvey has a 27 percent violation rate of selling tobacco products to teens. Two retailers in Wells County failed the most recent compliance checks altogether - one business in Harvey and one business in Fessenden. She said that 90 percent of the tobacco used by minors is provided by 18- to 21-year-old suppliers.

The City of Harvey takes action to 'move forward'

At the Wednesday, April 10, meeting of the Harvey City Council, Stolz discussed the commissioner's stand on the issue. She explained to the city that the county will pass an ordinance to increase the age to purchase tobacco products to 21 years of age, contingent on Harvey passing an ordinance for their municipality. The two ordinances would cover all of the retail stores in the Harvey area that sell tobacco products. The ordinance would cover the sale of all tobacco products.

Councilman Don Hoepfer said it was his understanding from discussion at previous meetings that the proposal involved restricting the sale of e-cigarettes and vaporized tobacco only.

Karen Nordby, city auditor, said that the cost to develop a new ordinance for the city would be between $1,000 and $2,000. She suggested that the council consider revenue streams and what the impact of this ordinance would have on sales.

"If the county will help pay for expenses of publishing a new ordinance, I am certainly in favor of it," said Councilman Bob Weninger.

After discussion and clarification, the Harvey City Council voted by majority rule to "move forward" with the issue. The city will visit with the county, with its attorney, look at costs associated with the ordinance, and make a final decision at a later date.

"I am in favor to move forward," said council member Melissa Anderson. "This action will show people that we care about our kids and don't want them to purchase tobacco products."

Two councilmen, Rick Eckart and Don Hoepfer, voted against the motion. "I think this is something that needs to be pushed at the state level not in municipalities," Eckart said.

Lawson trial postponed to July

The federal jury trial of Johnny Lawson and his wife, Christine Lawson, has been postponed to July 22 at 1:30 p.m. in Bismarck.

Johnny Lawson is a former Wells County sheriff.

The court granted the Lawsons' motion to reschedule the jury trial that was to begin on April 23. According to court documents, their legal counsel requested additional time to locate witnesses, complete an investigation, and prepare for trial.

The Lawsons were arrested on February 28 and were each charged in Federal Court with one felony count of theft of government property (in excess of $1,000)- aiding and abetting.

Parks joins Harvey Police Department as officer

by Jennifer Willis

EJ Parks joined the Harvey police department in March. With him comes a plethora of experience in law enforcement and military engagement. Originally from Yreka, Calif., Parks has spent time in the army, worked for the federal law enforcement agency and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Parks was enlisted with the army for a total of seven years. During that time, he served in Afghanistan and Iraq. At one point, his platoon was attached to a Special Forces team and was responsible for "protecting the compound and assets" within. Parks was awarded several medals and awards for his actions during service.

After leaving the army, Parks enrolled in the Federal Law Enforcement Academy in Artesia, New Mexico. After successfully completing the course, Parks was bounced around from posts in Arizona, California, and Washington state working for the federal police agency along with a brief stint in the Bureau of Indian Affairs working between Fort Yates and Belcourt.

Parks enjoyed the time he spent in North Dakota, so he researched law enforcement openings in the state. Soon he discovered the spot available in Harvey. Parks said, (l) "love it out here, it's very peaceful and quiet."

While Parks himself is single, he is bringing a companion to Harvey in December. Having qualified for the G.I. Bill, Parks chose to become a k9 police dog handler. In addition to the training required to become a handler, Parks was also given a Belgian Malinois dog. The dog will be trained in narcotics detection and in patrol work. Parks and his canine co-worker will be on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

While Parks has previous law enforcement experience, he needed to complete the North Dakota requirements to perform the job in Harvey. Normally an arduous process, the state recognized the need for additional officers in Harvey and pushed the paperwork through faster than normal.

Parks said that acting chief Henry Head has been a good role model and mentor during his transition into the Harvey Police Department. He added that it is good to see an officer that is community oriented rather than focused solely on the crimes and criminals.

On Wednesday, April 10, Judge James D. Hovey presided over the following cases in Fessenden.

Joseph Thomas, of Harvey, was sentenced on three class C felony charges resulting from a December 18, 2018, burglary. Thomas pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit burglary, burglary and theft of property. He was sentenced to 42 months in prison, with credit for 49 days served. His prison sentence will be followed by three years of supervised probation. B. M. Hanson Elementary Science Club set to explore

Tuesday, April 16, some of the great young scientific minds of the Harvey community will converge on B.M. Hanson Elementary's gymnasium.

These young scientists will explore some of the following questions: "What is elephant toothpaste? Can sublimation create a tornado? How do roller coasters work? What makes a drone fly? What is gallium?"

Attend the Science Showcase

The B. M. Hanson Elementary Science Club of fifth and sixth graders will be hosting their annual Science Showcase to answer these questions. The event starts at 1:30 p.m. in the ym and is open to all.

There will be over 17 displays and experiments to marvel and amaze visitors. You will be able to see the new Science Club T-shirt designed by Ava Stanley.

As their slogan says: "Our Science is out of this world!" They hope to see you there.

Fess-Bowdon FCCLA at State Leadership Conference

All 11 active members of Fessenden-Bowdon FCCLA attended the N.D. State Leadership Conference in Bismarck. The theme was "North Dakota - Believe in Yourself".

Delegates participated in general sessions, workshops, and experienced conference exhibits that assisted in strengthening their leadership abilities.

Keynote speaker was Eddie Slowikowski, speaker and entrepreneur. Using a high energy approach, he took participants on the ride of a lifetime to discover the greatness that lies within us.

Over 230 delegates participated in Students Taking Action with Recognition (STAR) Events, competitive events in which members are recognized for proficiency and achievement in chapter and individual projects, leadership skills, and career preparation. STAR Events offer individual skill development and application of learning through the following activities:

Legislative Report from District 14 State Senator Jerry Klein

Today, April 10, is day 64 at the legislature. There are only a few bills left in committee in their respective chambers - 11 in the Senate and 14 in the House. Some of those issues are pretty big, namely the corrections budget, the K-12 budget, the commerce budget, and the real big one, the human services budget.

There have been constant changes and debate over these budgets and because they are quite complex, they seem to be a work in progress. The deadline to get these bills out of committee and to the floor for a vote is scheduled for Friday. They will most likely go to conference committees after that.

One of the issues many are talking about is the addition of $5 million to the parks and recreation budget for the International Peace Garden to expand their greenhouse and add more cactus plants. These funds would need to be matched one to one from non-state funds. Now, as much as we would like to see our Peace Garden improved, and the fact that those funds would need to be matched (they are counting on a Canadian match), there are still a lot of what I would say priorities that need would take precedence. We will stay tuned on this issue.

As I said last week, the conference committee process is in full swing. Of the 71 committees that have been appointed, only seven issues have been resolved. There is talk of finishing on day 74, which would be six days short of our allotted time. There are many budgets and a great deal of policy that will have to be hammered out in the next 10 days. It might be possible - we will see.

Walleye population update for Devils Lake

A couple of weeks ago I highlighted a status report featured on the North Dakota Game and Fish Department's weekly webcast, Outdoors Online, relating to the Missouri River- Lake Oahe walleye fishery. This week, I'll summarize the webcast's recent Devils Lake walleye population update featuring biologist Todd Caspers.

Todd Caspers: The overall walleye numbers are pretty close to average, just a little bit above average. In terms of size distribution, right now most of the size groups of walleyes are right around their long-term averages, except for 15- to 20-inch size group, which is the ones anglers really like to keep. Those are a little bit below average, and the reason for that is that from 2013 to 2015, we had lower reproduction each of those three years, which is not typical on Devils Lake.

The good news moving forward is that from 2016 to 2018 we had pretty good walleye reproduction, and coupled with stocking efforts in 2016 and 2017, we should again see more "keeper" size walleye for anglers in the next couple of years.

Our overall walleye mortality rates on Devils Lake are on the low end of what is considered average, meaning anglers are not harvesting too many fish.

North Dakota Outdoors

by Doug Leier, Biologist
N.D. Game & Fish Department
dleier@nd.gov

So additional regulations (size restrictions) really would have no impact in improving size structure of the fishery.

Game and Fish also gets questions on protecting walleyes running up the coulees (Channel A, Mauvais Coulee) in the spring.

Caspers: At current (harvest) levels we do not believe it is really impacting the population really at all. A good example of that would be in 2009 when we had good coulee fishing that spring, but we also saw a really good natural reproduction that year, our highest reproduction event we have ever seen on Devils Lake. If the anglers were really tough on those spawning fish you obviously would not have observed a huge year-class in a year like that. And walleyes are a species that have a high reproductive capacity. It does not take a lot of females to be able to produce a good year-class if environmental conditions are favorable for those eggs to hatch and then the young fish to survive well.

Additionally, the majority of walleye that are caught in the coulees north of Lake Irvine and Lake Alice are probably residents of those two lakes, not Devils Lake itself. Springtime walleye harvest from these coulees is not likely to harm the walleye population since Lake Irvine and Lake Alice are relatively lightly-fished lakes since access conditions are currently poor on Lake Irvine, and Lake Alice is a national wildlife refuge where no open-water fishing is allowed. The most serious threat to the walleye population in these two lakes is probably declining water levels, which may lead to winterkill if dry conditions continue.

There is a full section of questions and answers on various versions of walleye size restrictions and the year-round open fishing season on the Game and Fish website at <https://gf.nd.gov/fishing/faq>

Exploring Germans From Russia foodways

"I'm more German than you are Norwegian!" my husband exclaimed, grinning at me.

He sounded a little too triumphant, I thought to myself.

We were reviewing the results of our DNA testing. I looked at his ethnicity pie charts, and he was correct. He was 82 percent German to my 72 percent Norwegian. He was zero percent Scandinavian, poor guy.

How had we survived more than 25 years of marriage?

I could understand why he likes sauerkraut and sausages, I thought to myself.

However, I was more English and Irish than he was, despite his English-sounding last name. The DNA service explained that Viking sailors exploring the coasts were probably the reason for my English and Irish heritage.

My appreciation of corned beef and cabbage on St. Patrick's Day might be genetic.

I began connecting with long-lost and never-met cousins. My husband thought it was a scam and didn't pay a lot of attention until one day. I had written a note to a person with a name that sounded familiar. She wrote back a story with very specific information about my childhood hobby.

"This is real!" he said with astonishment as he read the message over my shoulder. "No one would know that!"

I had chosen the kit that helped us connect ourselves to our heritage. However, many testing kits are available, and some can provide hints about future health.

However, keep in mind that lifestyle, including eating, physical activity and smoking habits, significantly influences our health.

Lately, I have stepped out of my Scandinavian heritage to work on a North Dakota Germans from Russia project.

Here's a little history I have gleaned from the Germans from Russia collection at the NDSU library, available at <http://www.ndsu.edu/grhc>. In 1763, Russian Czarina Catherine the Great, a former German princess, invited German colonists to Russia with the promise of farmland and more privileges. Many accepted the invitation and colonized the Volga region first. Then in 1803, Alexander I, grandson of Catherine, issued another invitation and Germans settled southern Ukraine near the Black Sea.

In 1871, Czar Alexander II revoked the preferential rights and privileges given to the colonist settlers by the manifestos of Catherine II and Alexander I. In 1874, universal military conscription was instituted. The Germans began emigrating to North America and settled everywhere from Canada to Texas. By 1910, about 60,000 Germans from Russia resided in North Dakota.

As I read the history, I became a little worried about getting this new ethnic foodways project correct. I know that people don't like others "messing with" their recipes.

My student interns and I began developing content and testing recipes. We learned many new German recipe names along the way. We gathered recipes from published cookbooks and recipe cards, and we ran the nutrition analysis.

Some recipes just needed a little clarification. As with many old cookbooks, sometimes an ingredient amount wasn't provided, or the ingredient was mentioned in the directions but not in the ingredient list. "Add some vinegar" is a little vague, for example.

Some of the recipes were fairly healthful "as is" with just a couple of tweaks. Other recipes were fairly high in fat and sodium and low in fiber.

In earlier history, people used what they had available, and they worked very hard physically to produce and prepare foods. We have many labor-saving devices now and burn fewer calories in our labor.

I need to caution people about using old canning recipes from any cookbook, though. Canning recommendations underwent a major re-do during World War II and are updated regularly. Some of the canning recipes we find in heritage cookbooks would not meet today's safety standards. Visit <https://www.ag.ndsu.edu/food> and check out the current research-tested recipes.

We had taste-testers try our slightly updated recipes. We added less salt, used whole milk or half and half instead of heavy cream, and used half whole-wheat flour for white flour in the buns and dumplings.

We tried several recipes for knoephla soup, and this is the winner. We added some vegetables for color and nutrition, reduced the butter and used half whole-wheat flour in the dumplings. Note that the dumplings will be light gray as a result of the whole-wheat flour.

This recipe is German-heritage-husband-approved.

Shoot 'em up

November 29- Charlie Cosgrove was born in Australia in 1861. When he was 21, he and his brother, Bill, moved to Dickinson to try ranching, and Charlie later described some of those early days:

"The Hash-Knife outfit from Texas was in here. Their cattle, 3,000 head, had a hash-knife brand. In '86, the year the snow blew, the Hash-Knife outfit lost 500 head. There was one damn blizzard after another.

"One day in '86, a feller named Taminlin brought a load of hay to Dickinson on a wagon hitched to two old nags. That same day the Hash-Knife outfit was in here drinking and shooting up the town, and old Taminlin got right on a street corner when the Hash-Knifers took a few pops at him. Taminlin seemed to go down in the hay, and one horse was killed. After the shooting let up, old Taminlin crawled out and said, 'Well, why didn't they get old Ted, too?' He got a good horse from the Hash-Knife outfit for the one they killed. That outfit would raise hell and tear things galley-west, then pay back for any damage they had done to anyone. They were pretty good that way."

Chateau wine

by Tessa Sandstrom

November 30- Medora's legacy as a tourist town began as early as 1936 when Louis Vallombrosa, the Marquis de Mores' eldest son, donated the de Mores properties to the state of North Dakota. The State Historical Society of North Dakota was made the trustee of the property and began some renovation in May, 1939. On this day of that year, the Badlander reported an interesting event.

The Works Progress Administration (WPA) and the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) were conducting much of the renovation. Crews were excavating the basement of the chateau when one of the enrollees discovered several bottles of rare wine that was bottled in Bordeaux, France, in the early 1800s. The discovery generated much excitement around the chateau. Rumors spread that the supervisors took the wine home and drank it, but Marge Neuens Gratton, originally of Medora, said this wasn't so. Her husband was one of the landscape architects working on the project and was present when the wine was discovered. He told Marge about the incident. She said:

"They were grading there and they didn't have large equipment like they have today. They were grading and part of the tractor kind of fell into what became the wine cellar. There are lots of stories that tell about that, but there wasn't really any wine left in those containers. The wine was pretty well dried out so no one got drunk on it. I just heard a story ... that the boys didn't get any of the wine but the supervisors and whatnot got it and took it home, but that isn't true. There wasn't any wine to take home, but it makes a good story for the boys."

Catherine Geiszler Vanourny

by Karen Horsley
December 3- On this date in 1909, Charles and Catherine Vanourny had been married only a day, but it's unlikely they were honeymooning. They were, after all, frugal, hard-working Germans from Russia. A 31-year-old widower, Charles had homesteaded his 160-acre farm southeast of Ashley. His new 25-year-old bride, Catherine Geiszler, had the distinction of being the first girl born in McIntosh County.

According to "Women of the Northern Plains" by Barbara Handy-Marchello, Catherine's mother reared her "in the ordinary fashion of the prairie, teaching the oldest to mind the younger ones and to manage some simple household tasks while (mother) worked in the fields. By the age of five ... Catherine looked after the babies while her parents were out of the house" and she was taught to "start the fire to heat the noon meal when the sun reached a certain spot on the floor."

Catherine was only 13 when her life changed dramatically. Capricious, uncontrollable fires were common on the dry, flat prairie. One afternoon, two of her younger sisters had gone to bring in the cows as prairie fires danced nearby. Noting a change in the wind, her mother rushed home from the field and found the girls, each grasping the tail of a terrified cow, racing for home, but little Annie's foot caught in a gopher hole and her mother reached her just as the flames engulfed them.

Hours later, Annie died. Their mother hung on for 15 days, desperately instructing Catherine in the details of housework and childcare despite incredible pain. Drawing her last breath, she asked Catherine to "be good to your stepmother," knowing that her husband would remarry in order to keep his family together.

Less than two months later, he did remarry. Catherine was no doubt a great help to her 18-year-old stepmother as they cared for the house and six younger siblings, as well as 13 additional children who would be born to her stepmother. This undoubtedly left Catherine well prepared to start her own family, as she began married life on the prairie, more than one hundred years ago.

What is your favorite Spring thing?

Kids: color stuff in!

I love the spring! Wind gusts lift kites high into the sky. Sunlight hours are longer so I get to play outside a little later in the day. The temperatures are warmer and many kids only need to wear sweaters or light jackets. Rain showers form puddles and I can slide in the mud!

...to blossoms!

Buds... hatch

What do I know? I'm just a froglet!

Spring has sprung! Spring into action, everyone: skateboard, play ball, hopscotch, garden, fly kites, ride bikes, mini-golf – and bring a friend, too!

What do you know about breaking words into syllables?

The word "spring" has only one syllable. You can say it without any breaks.

Now, say the word "secret." It has two syllables: se • cret. Can you hear them?

I really like even bigger words like the word "alphabet." It has three syllables: al • pha • bet.

In early spring, you'll notice many changes.

Read the clues below to fill in the crossword puzzle:

- crocuses, daffodils
- break out of an egg
- lawn "weed" with a bright yellow flower
- _____ grow longer (waking hours)
- color of grass and leaves
- tree frog with a high-pitched chirp
- shrub with soft, gray "flowers" (2 words)
- melts into water
- when you feel heat you feel _____
- beginning stage of leaf
- home that birds build
- clay or dirt mixed with water
- grow shorter (sleeping hours)
- falling drops of water

Wow! He's a big frog in a small pond!

Many baby animals are born in springtime.

Can you find and circle 5 words that have 3 or more syllables?

Ribbet!

Paul Whitman

Paul Whitman, 85, of Minot, North Dakota, died peacefully at St. Aloisius hospital in Harvey, ND, on April 5, 2019, following an extended illness. Paul was being lovingly cared for by family and caring hospital staff.

A funeral service will be held at 11:00 am Thursday, April 11, at McCabe United Methodist Church, 1030 N 6th St., Bismarck, with Rev. Mark Ehrmantraut and Rev. Jennifer McDonald officiating.

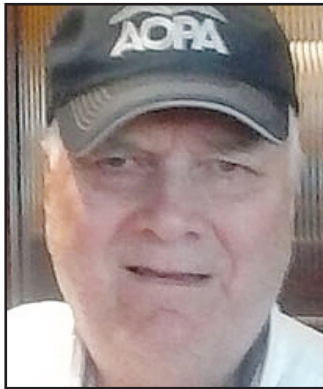

Burial will be at Bethany Cemetery, Robinson.

Visitation will be held one hour prior to the service at the church.

Paul Oren Whitman was born on August 12, 1933, to Marion (Russ) and Frank R. Whitman, at home on the Whitman Ranch near Robinson, the youngest of six brothers. Paul grew to be a part of the busy activity there. He attended school in Robinson and graduated from high school there with the highest grade average ever achieved in Kidder County to that date.

Paul helped on the farm for a year or two, then attended UND for a few semesters. He joined the U. S. Air Force and served most of his service years in Great Britain. One of the main things that he acquired from that time, other than experience, was a Volkswagen Beetle, which he brought home to North Dakota. That was a rarity here, since they had not long been on the market.

He resumed his studies at UND where he took some flight training to tie into what he had learned from growing up amongst brothers who were pilots. He received his degree eventually in another field. After graduation, he held jobs out of state for a few years. He returned to North Dakota where he became an officer in the North Dakota Truck Regulatory, stationed first in Fargo, then Washburn, and finally Minot. This became home to Paul and after serving for a total of more than twenty-seven years in Truck Reg, he retired and continued to live and enjoy life in Minot.

From early childhood Paul valued his faith in Christ. While living in Minot he became a member of Vincent United Methodist Church where he found fellowship and spiritual encouragement. Paul had a special gift for getting acquainted with those he met, remembering names and details about lives. He was greatly comforted by the expressions of concern and affection for him during his recent illness.

Although Paul never married, he was very interactive with his many nieces and nephews and their parents. This was his family, and they reciprocated with love and care. In his retirement years, a cousin and longtime resident of Minot, Arthur Ekblad, was a faithful friend, and often a dinner companion. This enriched Paul's life and enabled him to live independently almost to the end of his life. Paul's family has been so very grateful to Art for his care and attention.

Paul is survived by his brother and sister in-law, Ward and Edith Whitman; several cousins and his many nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents; and brothers, Glen, Allen, Harold and Frank.

Harvey Kiwanis hosts Peer to Peer class

Harvey Kiwanis hosted a group of students and their instructor from the Harvey High School at the April Kiwanis meeting. This group is involved in the Peer to Peer Leadership or Mentoring class led by Trista Zerr. Zerr also is the special education teacher for K-12.

At the start of the 2018-2019 school year, Harvey High School offered the Peer to Peer Leadership class. Students learn about a variety of disabilities and how to create and promote positive, lifelong friendships. A part of the class is discussing the disabilities we might not see.

"I am hopeful that this class will change how students are treating each other in school, and not just special education students, but all students," said Zerr.

The students said they are assigned a mentee at the beginning of the year and that they need to share at least 15 hours of their time outside of school with them and support their mentees throughout the school day which may include taking notes, working on homework or "hanging out" at lunch or breakfast.

Peer to Peer Leadership or Mentoring is a process through which more experienced individuals encourage and assist less experienced individuals develop his or her potential within a shared area of interest. The resulting relationship is reciprocal - both individuals in the partnership have an opportunity for growth and development. This program originated at Century High School in Bismarck and spread to other Bismarck schools. Harvey is the first rural school to start the Peer to Peer Leadership Class.

The class focuses on all disability areas, in-school activities, out-of-school extracurricular activities, promoting socialization, friendships and independence and disability awareness to gain a better understanding of a variety of areas. It was designed for general education students interested in developing leadership skills and learning about students with disabilities.

These students work together in an integrated, positive fashion, to promote socialization, independence, and strong friendship bonds that last throughout high school and beyond. It will give students the ability to expose students to new social opportunities, and expand their support networks.

This group has been very involved with both the school and community activities. Each month they have sponsored an activity within the school and/or community to help raise awareness. Some activities have been making a float for the homecoming parade, they were required to design something in the Harvey community that was accessible for all (ie. playground, swimming pool, etc.), carving pumpkins together, shoe project - take a walk in the shoes of someone who has a disability making weighted lap blankets and fidgets, and volunteering at the Night to Shine event. They also presented People First Language to the high school students to educate them on proper ways to talk to and describe a person with a disability.

These students also opened a new coffee shop at Harvey High School on March 12. The coffee shop will give students the opportunity for more life skills such as communication, working with others, inventory, and following directions. Funds from the coffee shop will be used for more inclusive activities.

"My hopes are that the Peer to Peer Leadership class makes changes to the school community as well as our community as a whole on how we treat others," Zerr said. "I want to see students become more empathetic and understanding of the people around them and those who have a disability."

Kiwanis supports youth in the community.

JESUS SAID, "COME TO ME,"

Jesus has just been rejected by the leaders of the Jewish nation and they were making plans to kill Him. His response was to commune with the Father and then reach out to all people with an invitation to come to Him for salvation. "Come to Me, all you who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Matthew 11:28. A rest from our unattainable labors to make peace with God. Christ is our rest and peace.

Sometime later Jesus gives the recipe for full satisfaction, "I am the bread of life. He who comes to Me shall never hunger, and he who believes in Me shall never thirst." John 6:35. "I am the living bread which came down from heaven. If anyone eats of this bread, he will live forever; and the bread that I shall give is My flesh, which I shall give for the life of the world." John 6:51

Jesus Christ fulfilled this on the cross. There He gave His life so that any and all who would come to Him would receive forgiveness of sin and eternal life. All mankind is considered dead in sin and separated from God. Christ gave His sinless life as a sacrifice so sinners could obtain a new life in Him.

What a God of love and compassion who was willing to pay the extreme price, His blood, to buy us back from the deception and lies of Satan. Answer the call, come to Him and receive life.

CITY OF FESSENDEN RECOGNIZED FOR SAFE DRINKING WATER ACT COMPLIANCE

Public water systems are required by the Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA) to take many actions to provide safe drinking water.

The SDWA has passed by Congress in 1974 to protect public health by regulating the nation's public drinking (potable) water supplies. Over the years, there have been a number of changes to the Safe Drinking Water Act. These changes have made it more challenging to maintain compliance. The North Dakota Department of Health issues a Safe Drinking Water Act Certificate of Achievement as one way to recognize the public water systems that satisfied all applicable requirements during the previous calendar year.

In 2018, the City of Fessenden complied with all applicable Safe Drinking Water Act requirements. To recognize this accomplishment, the North Dakota Department of Health issued the City of Fessenden a Safe Drinking Water Act Certificate of Achievement.

The City of Fessenden commends its water system staff for a job well done from which its consumers benefitted.
