District 14 senate race uncertain

By Neil O. Nelson

The expected political race between two well-established state legislators in the recently reconfigured District 14 will not materialize as Sen. Joan Heckaman, New Rockford, is retiring from politics and Sen. Jerry Klein, Fessenden, is hesitant to say what the future holds for him.

The legislative bill containing the new district lines, approved by the Legislature and signed by Gov. Doug Burgum, eliminates three rural districts, District 23 being one of the fateful three.

As a result, Eddy County will be absorbed by the expanding District 14, which includes Wells County.

Sen. Joan Heckaman, a Democrat, has represented District 23 and Eddy County since 2007. She has announced her intent to leave the political arena when her term expires on Nov. 30, 2022.

Sen. Klein's term ends of Dec. 1, 2024.

Jerry Klein

Joan Heckaman

Jerry Klein

That's three years from now, noted the veteran district legislator this week.

"If my crystal ball was working today, I could give a more definite answer of the future. I think it continues to be important that as urban districts outnumber the rural, our district is represented by legislators who have developed not only seniority but also respect among their colleagues."

But one doesn't know what the future will bring, Klein added.

That being said, Klein is confident the District 14 team will continue to work hard to represent the entire area provided during the redistricting process.

According to Klein, redistricting is about doing the math. "Ten years ago, we were looking for an additional couple hundred citizens, this time we're looking for a couple thousand. With the growth in the east and west, rural areas could only expand, and they certainly did."

Joan Heckaman

Joan Heckaman has indicated that changes to the rural counties in the state make it more difficult for voters to stay connected to their legislators.

For District 14 and the addition of Eddy County, Heckaman said legislators will soon have seven more county commissions to work with, more city commissions, more school districts, and possibly more health units, in addition to regional highway districts, vocational rehabilitation districts, law enforcement and highway patrol districts, etc.

"So, you can see that rural legislators have more traveling and more connections to make than urban legislators do. Will this affect the connections to the voters? Only time will tell."

With her residence in New Rockford and Eddy County, Heckaman has no plans to run for a legislative seat.

"District 14 will not have a legislative election in 2022, so my time will be up by then."

Heckaman, however, plans on staying active in the Democratic Party and also in public service.

"I'm not one to sit at home and watch things happen. I like to be involved with initiatives to help make North Dakota a better place to live, work, and play." Having said that, Heckman hopes to continue working with the boards and task forces that she currently serves on.

"I look forward to meeting more people in District 14 as time goes on."

Population move to cities shifts district lines the Legislature, was adhered to in the bill and plan approved by the Legislature and signed by Gov. Burgum, added Devlin, longtime House member.

District 14 expands

The addition of Eddy County and a good share of Burleigh County will make District 14 one of the largest districts in the state geographically.

Robin Weisz, District 14 North Dakota House of Representative member from Hurdsville, stated earlier, when a draft of the eventual map was first released, that the rural areas of the state will continue to lose influence in the legislature as the population keeps shifting.

"Because of the shift in population to the west and to the large cities, the whole central and northeast part of the state saw some dramatic changes. We lost two rural districts and every other district grew larger, including ours."

Seniority, said Weisz, will become even more important for the rural districts going forward.

Both Weisz and Jon Nelson, Rugby, District 14 House member along with Weisz, assumed office in 1996. The terms of both Houses members will expire on November 30, 2024.

The new map avoids splitting up the majority of North Dakota's 53 counties among separate districts. House member Devlin said one of the redistricting committee's goals was to keep counties intact when possible.

ND population sets record at 779,000

North Dakota's population is estimated at a record 779,000, up almost 16% during the last decade, but most of the state's rural legislative districts continued losing residents, according to census data.

The legislative panel focused on keeping 47 districts, rather than increasing or reducing the size of the Legislature. Each district is represented by two House members and a senator, which gives the Legislature 141 members.

District populations averaged about 14,500 people when the Legislature completed its last redistricting plan a decade ago. The new plan adds about 2,000 more people to each district.

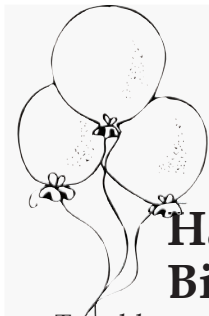

The other district in addition to District 23 that was eliminated is in the northeast corner of the state is District 19, west of Grand Forks. Many of the district lines in the northeast corner were juggled. District 26 in the southeastern corner of North Dakota is also being eliminated.

The Legislature has 141 lawmakers — 47 senators and 94 House members.

Otter Tail to purchase light standards from Harvey city

Otter Tail Power Company is planning to purchase the light standards bordering Highway 52 in Harvey.

The light standards are currently owned by the City of Harvey but serviced by Otter Tail.

Because of a recent mandate by the state, the local power company can no longer service the light poles, according to Dave Voller, Harvey, Otter Tail Power Power Company representative.

Otter Tail is proposing that it acquire the light standards from the city, said Voller at a recent Harvey City Council meeting.

Voller expects to return to a council meeting with more specifics.

Suicide Loss Day observed Nov. 20

International Survivors of Suicide Loss Day is in November on the Saturday before Thanksgiving (November 20, 2021) and promotes coming together and supporting the survivors of this tragic event.

When someone is lost to suicide it impacts those who knew and loved them. For those people, the grief and trauma can be especially difficult to handle. This day is all about showing support and love to the survivors of suicide.

Sauter facts corrected

Allen Sauter, originally from Harvey, now living in Bismarck, is a graduate from Harvey High School. He also attended Bismarck Junior College, now named Bismarck State College.

In a recent Herald-Press story, Sauter was said to have received his GED in the Army. This was incorrect.

Sauter has more than 33,120 flight hours, not 55,000, as stated incorrectly in the original article.

Jewish Cemetery

By Tessa Sandstrom

November 24, 2021 — Jewish cemeteries and memorials are scattered across the continent of Europe from Prague to Barcelona, and many are found in the city centers to pay tribute to a people who lived through many hardships. North Dakota may seem far away from all of that history, but on the vast, bare plains of Ramsey County, North Dakota has its own memorial to a Jewish settlement. The Sons of Jacob Cemetery is little known to most in the state, but on this day in 1971, the Devil's Lake Journal brought this unique history and land back into the present.

The article came after a recent visit of two Jewish descendants whose family had tried to homestead near Garske, a small village in Ramsey County. The visitors, Stewart Stern of Hollywood and Jeff Kaufmann of Santa Monica, were thought to be the only descendants of the Jewish pioneers to visit since the settlement disbanded in the early 1900s. Stern and Kaufmann had come to retrace the steps of their relatives, from the settlement in Ramsey County, to Rolla where their relatives traded furs with the Native Americans.

While on their visit in the Lake Region, the two visited Stern's family's homestead. Following their visit, they hoped to visit Stern's uncle, Adolf Zukor, and present him with soil from the old homestead and with pictures of the cemetery.

Zukor had been one of the early pioneers to move into the Lake Region. Zukor had come from a family of vineyard farmers, and much like the other pioneers who staked out claims in the Lake Region, he had hopes of making a living on his own land.

Immigrants began moving into the area in the summer of 1882, but the winter proved difficult for the pioneers. They lived in insufficient homes and were unaccustomed to the harsh North Dakota weather conditions. Poor conditions and unlucky crop failures the following summer plagued the inexperienced immigrants. Many families moved out within the next few years, and the situation of the Jewish settlements grew more dire. Relief came in the winter of 1888, when they began receiving welfare from sympathetic Jews in the Twin Cities. It wasn't long before contributions came from across the nation.

Settlers held out for several years with the financial aid of the cities, but a bitter rivalry soon grew between Minneapolis and St. Paul over the Devil's Lake settlement. St. Paul believed it had done more than its share for the Devil's Lake colony. Meanwhile, Minneapolis was requesting aid from non-Jews, and St. Paul believed Minneapolis' actions were "making beggars of the Devil's Lake colony." Despite the rivalry, the settlement persisted several more years.

By 1912, it was the oldest Jewish settlement in the Northwest. The small village retained a sense of livelihood with its own rabbi and teacher, and farmers were having more success with crops. By 1920, however, the families had drifted away, and many younger people went to the cities. The cemetery now remains the only remnant of the brief, yet persistent Jewish settlers of the Lake Region.

Remembering the fight our friendship endured

by Carol Owen,
Fessenden High School
Class of 1959

Lucy was my best friend. We were friends from about the age of one and a half. I remember jumping on the couch in their apartment that was in the same building as their gas station and repair shop. It was the cutest apartment I have ever seen and remember every part of it. Her mom, Evelyn, pretty much ran the gas station. She pumped the gas; sold the pop, candy and cigarettes; and kept the books. Pete, Lucy's dad, was the greatest mechanic in Fessenden and spent many hours working on the cement floor of the shop.

Evelyn had been a teacher and would help Lucy study in their car parked outside the station. Lucy was always the smartest student in our class. She was also the shyest person in the school. My mom, Emma, always wondered why my dresses were pulled loose on the left side. After seeing us together, it was obvious that Lucy was hanging on to my dress whenever she wasn't with Evelyn.

I was outgoing and physical feats were important to me. We made a good team: Lucy the shy bookworm and me the physical leader. We were so close; we could finish each other's sentences. It all worked out great until we got into high school and the two characters did not meld. Each began to go their separate way because we were getting ready to grow up and get ready for adulthood.

Then came the volleyball game in gym class. The teacher had gone through a great deal of preparation setting up the net indoors because we couldn't play outside in the North Dakota snow. Everything had to be set up and taken down in the same day and there would be a basketball game that night.

Lucy and I were on the same side and there were older girls on the other side of the net. We were slamming the ball back and forth and I was in Seventh Heaven because we were tied and had a chance to beat them for the first time since I don't know when. I was up closer to the net and Lucy was way in back where I thought was safest for her to be for a non-athlete.

Unfortunately, the ball whizzed past me and went directly to Lucy, who stood there like a stone and barely bent her wrist to tap on the ball! Dang! The buzzer went off just as she looked around for the closest door to the water fountain, just outside the gym in the hallway.

I was hollering at her all the way to the water fountain and I could see she didn't give a damn if we lost or won the game. She quietly took her time getting her drink of water and that was the last straw for me. I slammed her head in the fountain and she came up out of there with a whole new personality! She had a crazed look on her face and her long fingernails were clawed and ready to scratch my face, which they did.

The fight was on! Scratching, pushing and hitting, all while trying to be quiet so Superintendent Killie wouldn't hear us. A crowd of girls began egging us on and told us to get in the locker room and continue the fight. I got in one extra hit on the way in and Lucy had the nerve to slap me back!

I thought the fight was over because Lucy took off for the shower. So, I followed her and we both quietly finished our showers. On the way out of the shower, she shoved me again! Wow! She wasn't done yet, so I shoved her back and we stopped again.

During those years, there were a couple of three-foot by three-foot boxes of foot powder in the locker rooms. She was walking through the foot powder and I gave her a push just so I would get in the last blow. She came back at me and slapped the glasses off my face! I knew what was waiting for me at home when I announced my glasses were going to have to be replaced. Broken glasses. That was enough! So, I returned the slap and broke her glasses. The fight stopped again.

We both finished getting dressed and took off for our History class as the bell rang again. We left the locker room quietly with foot powder scattered all over the floor and never talked about the fight again. There were no apologies or discussions about who won and who lost the fight. The weirdest thing was how the fight started and stopped. Our friendship never suffered from the fight and the friendship has lasted to this day. Written in my 80th year.

Many North Dakotans need more than tax cuts

As a former North Dakota Tax Commissioner and Director of the Department of Management and Budget, I was unimpressed with the pattern of expenditures that evolved from the recent special session of the legislature.

Since both house passed the income tax measure, the legislators of both parties can share the blame for this fiscal misstep. The measure passed unanimously in the House and by a vote in the Senate of 40-7.

Governor Douglas Burgum said the income tax rebate of up to $350 a year will be putting money back into the pockets of hardworking North Dakotans. He forgot that much of the money the state is playing with – at least $1,000,000,000 – comes from the federal coronavirus money, if not directly, indirectly for sure.

Tax Not Onerous

Cutting the income tax was bad public policy, no matter how bipartisan and unanimous it may have been. In the first place, North Dakota's income tax is not onerous and is the only tax that reduces the regressivity of the total tax system, meaning that low income people will continue to pay even more of their income in taxes than do the upper income people.

Under the new legislation, the income tax rebate will be paid only to those who paid income taxes. In other words, the low income people will get no benefit from this bonanza.

Pay Little, Get Little

Tax Commissioner Ryan Rauschenberger estimates that the $350 will erase the income tax liabilities of around 300,000 North Dakotans. How many of these now pay $100 or less? Those who pay minimal income taxes will benefit minimally while those who get the $350 will benefit more.

This would look like fiscal fairness 90 years ago but it does not reflect the nature of economic circumstances for thousands of North Dakota who no longer own businesses or farms. The level of social and economic interdependence has grown significantly.

Growing Dependence

Many people no longer have independent sources of income as in the days of old but are clerks, office workers, tradespeople and others who work at the behest of some higher authority. Because of the instability of employment today, they are dependent on private and public sources to supplement or guarantee a minimal existence.

It is a responsibility of the state government to provide the new level of commonality in order to have a peaceful and productive society. While we bragged about our self-reliance decades ago, we are now in era when the common good requires us to be concerned about those who are in no position to be self-reliant.

Less Self-Reliance

But we fight commonality. Our sharing inclinations are smothered by self-interest. The repeal of the income tax means that there will be less in the treasury to deal with the problems of fellow citizens who suffer from regressive taxation because the legislator can only see the problems of the middle and upper income taxpayers.

The legislature did very little to share the state's prosperity with those who have needs in an otherwise caring community.

Many Needs

We have around 1,100 abortions annually a year in North Dakota but nothing to help teenagers before or after pregnancy; 75,000 people below the poverty line; thousands of people going without medication and health care; Indians culturally imprisoned on reservations, suffering

N.D. Matters

and former professor of

from all sorts of terminal health conditions;

We have diabetics being victimized by outrageous prices; hundreds of single moms struggling with limited income from two jobs.

What this state needed more than a selfish income tax cut was a greater sense of responsibility for each other, with allocation of resources cognizant of the today's realities.

If farmers can have safety nets, others should also be entitled to economic security.

Changes planned for Woody’s

With a business plan that impressed the JDA directors, Lemer indicated he was asking for $20,000, either in a grant or no-interest loan.

The money would be used for renovation of the north Lincoln Avenue business and help in the purchase of tools and computer equipment.

Lemer plans to offer everything in the line of automotive engine repair, in addition to tires. Everything but gas and wheel alignments, he added.

Before the JDA approved a $10,000 grant and $10,000 no-interest five-year loan, the directors inquired on the underground tanks on the property.

The excavation of the tanks, which are under warranty, shouldn’t be a problem, according to Lemer.

Plus, he said, there was other work he planned to do around the property.

“We want to help you do that,” said Friese. “We want you to be successful.”

“You’re taking over a business that has a good name and reputation,” voiced the board. “So you’ve got a good start.”

Tot Spot daycare

Much like they have every month, the directors reviewed the Tot Spot daycare financials.

And, like they have in recent months, they found the north side day care on solid ground, showing a positive cash flow six out of the last seven months.

“After struggling for so long,” said Ann Adams, “it’s nice to see them doing so well.”

Rick Eckard agreed, saying, “It’s a good investment.”

Underwriting the community daycare, the JDA is considering adding a security system at the center, according to Adams.

Highway 52

The changes along Highway 52 on Harvey’s west side are a concern to the Job Development Authority.

Milo Baltrusch, for one, has submitted a written comment to the state highway department, expressing his concern for keeping the Business-52 exit and entrance in place.

“We can’t lose that interchange.”

Rick Eckart, Harvey mayor, said much could be solved if the state would reduce the speed limit on Hwy. 52 around Harvey to 55 mph.

“That’s the biggest thing. Reducing the speed limits there is a must.”

Dr. Paul Gunderson, JDA executor, also expressed his concern with the speed limit to state officials at the public meeting in Harvey last week.

“All comments and concerns will be taken under consideration,” said Gunderson.

Housing survey

The initial step in the much-needed and much-anticipated housing survey planned for the state’s east-central region were taken last week when a public meeting was held in Oakes.

Subsequent meetings will be held across the region; Harvey’s meeting is tentatively scheduled for Nov. 30.

Housing in Harvey, especially, is a concern, Dr. Paul Gunderson has stated often.

“People are working in Harvey and would like to live here, but there isn’t housing available.”

The last housing study was taken in 2012-13, according to Gunderson.

The 2021 survey, conducted by a Minneapolis firm, promises to be exhaustive and it will be analyzed, promises Gunderson.

A handle on the housing in Harvey and the county is a tool sorely missed in advancing economic development, testified Gunderson.

The survey will cover the counties of Wells, Foster, Barnes, Dickey Griggs, McIntosh, LaMoure, Logan and Stutsman.

The study will begin in January and be completed by mid-to-late spring 2022.

Gunderson stated that he has had conversations with contractors, building suppliers and the Great Plains Housing Authority over the housing demands in the Harvey economic development area.

There was a definite rush to get families with children in decent housing within the Harvey area before school started this fall, added Gunderson.

Natural gas

Dr. Gunderson reported that he surveyed 130 potential commercial users of natural gas in Harvey, estimated to use more than 5 million cubic feet of natural gas on an annual basis.

Gunderson and others are waiting to hear where the state plans to spend funds on natural gas distribution in the state.

Harvey and Wells County and the north central region have designs on natural gas usage, provided it can tap into the gas line planned from the Bakken oil fields east to Grand Forks.

Harvey and Wells County would also like to tap into the massive water line under construction that will take water from Lake Audobon east to the Sheyenne River north of Lake Ashtabula.

Water siphoned from the pipeline would eventually flow into the Sheyenne River reservoir in Harvey, promising a more constant water level in the popular recreational river coursing through the city’s south side.

Christmas Cash

The Christmas Cash promotion is “happening” in Harvey, according to banker Melissa Anderson.

“I hope it’s going good,” said Norby. “I think people are using it.”

Said one Christmas Cash participant: “I bought gas for three vehicles, bought a boat load of groceries and paid my dentist bill, with money left over. Plus, I had a hundred to spend on myself. You can’t go wrong on a deal like this.”

Christmas Cash works, added the Harvey resident.

County. Townships included in District 2 are Norway Lake, Valhalla, Hamburg, Bremen, Germantown, Fairville, Cottonwood, Cathay, Woodward, Speedwell, Skyston, Bilodeau, Progress, Berlin, Johnson and Hawksnest townships.

The towns of Hamberg, Cathay and Sykeston are in District 2.

District 5

Bryan Lault lost seven townships in north central Wells County but the District 5 commissioner picked up West Ontario, Haaland, Silver Lake and Lynn townships. The towns of Bowdon and Hurdsfield are in District 5. There are 789 residents in District 5’s 13 townships.

District 3 and 4

The City of Harvey was divided largely along the Soo Line Railroad tracks, with District 3 commanding the south side of the city. District 4 encompasses the north side of Harvey.

However, residents in the blocks between Park Ave. and Alder Ave. between 7th and 9th streets on the south side, and the blocks between Alder Ave. and Burke Ave. between 7th and 8th streets, again on the south side of the tracks and running parallel with the Soo Line, are in commissioner Dennis Dockter’s District 3.

District 4 commissioner Dockter has all the area on the north side of Harvey, in addition to the city blocks running along the east-west Soo Line tracks.

According to Stutlien’s figures, 825 resident live in each of the city’s two districts.

In reaching the desired outcome, Stutlien noted that the City of Harvey had the least amount of changes in the new realignment of Wells County.

Lucille Wiedmeier

Lucille “Lucy” Wiedmeier, 92, Bismarck, formerly of Harvey passed away in her sleep at her home in Bismarck on Tuesday, November 9, 2021 where she was under the care of her oldest daughter, Janice, who was her caregiver since 2012.

Graveside services will be at the St. Cecilia Catholic Cemetery on Saturday, November 20, 2021 at 12 noon. Rosary recitation will be at Hertz Funeral Home on Saturday at 11:15 a.m. and will then proceed to the cemetery after the rosary.

Lucy was born on April 13, 1929 on the family farm five miles northeast of Harvey, ND. She was the daughter of John and Helen (Volk) Zerr. She was baptized on April 28, 1929 at St. Anthony’s Catholic Church in Selz and was confirmed there in 1940. Lucy attended a one room country school. In the sixth grade she began attending school in Harvey and graduated from the Harvey High School in 1946. She then attended and graduated from the Aakers College for Secretarial in 1947. She was employed at Herberger’s in Grand Forks before beginning work at the First State Bank in Harvey in the loan department.

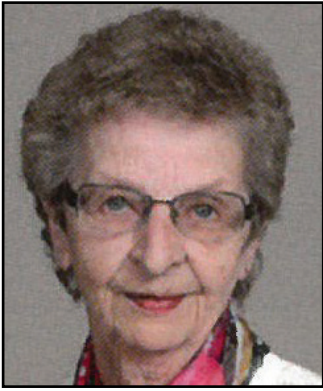

Lucille married Richard Gustaf Wiedmeier on April 6, 1950 at the St. Cecilia Catholic Church in Harvey. They moved to her parents farm northeast of Harvey in the early 1950’s. They raised registered hogs, registered Angus and registered Holstein cows.

Lucille and Richard maintained and raised a huge garden for her family and many other family members. Lucy milked cows by hand until there were electric milk machines, used a cream separator, made homemade butter, cooked, baked bread from scratch, grilled, butchered, wrapped and smoked their own meats for the year, along with butchering and canning chickens, knew how to use tools for repairs, washed clothes in a two – tub wringer washer until an automatic one was purchased after running water was plumbed into the house in 1968. In the 1960’s she and Richard managed and worked at the Harvey Veteran’s Club and went on to purchase the Pioneer Bar. She later was a flagger for Border States Paving, Inc. of Fargo. She retired and they continued to reside in Harvey. Richard died on August 3, 2007. Lucy moved to Bismarck in May 2012.

She was a member of St. Cecilia Catholic Church in Harvey. Her hobbies included bowling where she won numerous trophies and tournaments. Lucy was past president of the Wells Eagles Auxiliary # 3080 in Harvey from 1985 – 1986.

Irene Keller

Beloved mother and grandmother, Irene “Mickey” Keller, 89, of Harvey, died Monday, November 15, 2021, at St. Aloisius Medical Center. Funeral services were held on Friday, November 19, 2021, at 10:30 a.m. at St. Cecilia’s Catholic Church. Visitation was Thursday from 4-7 p.m. at the church followed by a prayer service which will begin at 7 p.m. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Mickey was born on October 2, 1932, in Berthold, ND to Edward and Evelyn (Billeadue) Korte. She grew up in Berthold, graduating high school in 1950. Mickey went on to attend and graduate from Sisters of St. Francis Nursing School in Minot. Mickey and Robert “Bob” Keller were married on April 13, 1955, at St. Leo’s Catholic Church in Minot. They moved to and raised their family in Harvey. In addition to supporting Bob in his business, BJ Auto Sales, and caring for her 6 children, Mickey took pride in her work as a registered nurse at both the clinic and hospital in Harvey. Mickey and Bob enjoyed 45 years of marriage before Bob passed away on April 5, 2001.

Involvement in the community and staying active were important to Mickey. Upon “retirement” from her nursing career, she went on to volunteer and work for 20 years at Harvey High School. There she found joy in interacting with staff and students alike. Additionally, she served for over 25 years on the cleaning and maintenance team at the church. Mickey’s Catholic faith and connection to the Church were central to how she lived. She was a lifelong learner, deepening her faith through bible studies, daily rosaries, Holy Adoration, and reading about the lives of Saints.

In addition to her other volunteer activities, Mickey was an active member of the Catholic Daughters, American Legion Auxiliary, Friendly Neighbors Homemakers Club, and St. Cecilia’s Catholic Church. What Mickey loved most was spending time with her family - celebrating holidays, playing games, and sharing her famous apple pies. She had a special connection with each of her dearly loved grandchildren. Some of her favorite moments were the quiet times she spent rocking her grandbabies and cherishing each one for their unique gifts.

Mickey is survived by her children, Bob and Julie (Senger) Keller of Harvey; Doug and Marianne (Vollmer) Keller of Harvey; Becky and Bill Marion of Bismarck; Dave and Sheila (Mack) Keller of Omaha; Mark and Kathy (Schmidt) Keller of Bismarck; Jean and Bob Rexine of Bismarck; 17 grandchildren; and 6 great-grandchildren.

Mickey was preceded in death by her parents; husband, Bob; daughter, Mary; grandson, Jacob Dale Keller; brothers, Arthur Korte, Virgil Korte, Lawrence “Bud” Korte, and Fr. Edward Korte; sisters, Elaine Halvorson, Sr. Angela Korte, and Mary Korte.

Executive privilege: Center stage, again

We the People

David Adler, The Alturas Institute

David Adler answers your Constitution questions. Send them to this newspaper.

Delegates to the Constitutional Convention, as we have seen, did not fail to address the issue of presidential authority to invoke executive privilege. Rather, they chose not to clothe the president with power to withhold information from Congress.

The framers of the Constitution, part of a generation that fought executive tyranny in the form of King George III, studiously avoided any pretense of granting to the newly-minted presidency a power that was denied to the English monarchy.

The absence of any mention of executive privilege in the text of the Constitution, and the fact that the framers never contemplated vesting such authority in the president, has not stopped advocates from asserting it. Since every inquiry about constitutional authority begins with the text and debates in the Constitutional Convention, precisely where, we are entitled to ask, do admirers of executive privilege purport to locate such authority?

Various writers have attempted to ground executive privilege in early historical practice, that is, in claims that founding presidents asserted a sweeping, discretionary power to withhold information from Congress. These claims, however, are not supported by the facts.

The lists begin with the assertion that President George Washington established early precedents, beginning with an investigation in 1792 by the House of Representatives into the disastrous military campaign of General Arthur St. Clair against an Indian tribe.

The House had appointed a committee to investigate the “causes of the failure” of the campaign and had vested in it the authority to call for persons and papers to assist the investigation. For his part, President Washington recognized the authority of Congress to conduct an inquiry into the conduct of an executive officer, which reflected the historic practice of parliamentary inquiries into executive actions. As president, however, he cooperated completely. Washington complied with the committee’s demand and freely supplied all materials and documents relevant to the failed expedition. He offered no separation of powers objection.

The theory that Washington invoked executive privilege during the St. Clair Affair stems from nothing that Washington did or said, but rests, rather, on an excerpt from Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson’s notes of a cabinet meeting. Jefferson wrote that the cabinet had agreed that the “house was an inquest, and therefore might institute inquiries,” but determined that the president had discretion to refuse papers, “the disclosure of which would injure the public.”

There is no reason to doubt the accuracy of Jefferson’s notes, but little, if any, precedential value can be gleaned from this episode. First, Washington complied with the demands of the committee and supplied everything requested. Second, there is no evidence that Jefferson’s notes were presented to Congress or filed with the government. In short, they formed no part of the public record; there was no assertion to Congress of a right to an executive privilege and no statement or declaration of an executive power to withhold information from Congress. Finally, any precedential value is vitiated by the fact that neither Washington nor Jefferson ever invoked the St. Clair “precedent” in subsequent episodes that allegedly involved their respective claims to executive privilege.

Consistent with his understanding of an executive responsibility to provide information to Congress, Washington, that same year, also supplied the House with information relevant to an inquiry into the alleged accusations of impropriety brought against Secretary of the Treasury Alexander Hamilton.

In 1796, Washington refused to provide information to the House for information relative to the Jay Treaty, but not for reasons of executive privilege. Rather, he withheld the requested materials on grounds that the House has no part of the treaty power. Ultimately, James Madison persuaded Washington to share the requested information on the basis of prudence and comity. As Madison pointed out, Washington, eventually, would need financial support from the House to carry out the terms of the treaty. Washington saw the light and provided the information sought by the House.

During Washington’s tenure, the issue was not executive concealment from Congress, but disclosure to the public. Scholars have demonstrated that Washington provided the requested information, some on a public, and some on a confidential basis. On some occasions, Congress disclosed the information the public; on others, Congress persuaded the executive to disclose the information to the public. Congress, as we have seen, possessed the constitutional authority under Article 1, section 5, to withhold information from the citizenry.

Some writers have falsely asserted that President Thomas Jefferson invoked executive privilege to withhold information from the courts in the 1807 treason trial of Aaron Burr. Burr had requested from Jefferson a letter written to him by Gen. James Wilkinson. Jefferson’s attorney, George Hay, informed Chief Justice John Marshall, who was presiding over the trial, that he would submit the letter, with recommendations for material that might not be disclosed, “for reasons of justice,” that is, to protect the reputation of those not material to the trial, but that he would “defer” to Marshall’s determination of what might be deleted from the letter. Thus, Jefferson never asserted executive privilege, nor did he ever challenge the authority of the court to demand information from the president.

Neither Washington nor Jefferson ever asserted executive privilege, contrary to the claims of reckless writers. Indeed, no president ever invoked executive privilege until 1954, when Dwight D. Eisenhower asserted it to withhold information from Sen. Joseph McCarthy in the midst of the McCarthy-Army hearings. Eisenhower’s refusal to furnish information to the Wisconsin demagogue was applauded by from coast to coast. The popular decision of a popular president, however, would become a regrettable one, with the passage of time.

The alleged basis for executive privilege, then, cannot be found in the text of the Constitution, the debates in the Constitutional Convention, the various state ratifying conventions or in early government practice. The constitutional basis for the claim, as we shall see next week, is to be found in the Supreme Court’s lamentable creation of the power, in the landmark case of United States v. Nixon, in 1974, to which we turn next week.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Harvey hosts events for holidays

Harvey community friends and neighbors can participate in two ambitious holiday events this year.

The First Lutheran Church will be serving its annual free Thanksgiving dinner on Nov. 25 and the Harvey Kiwanis is asking area residents too help raise $57,000 for a toddler playset in Centennial Park.

Cancelled last year because of the pandemic, First Lutheran's free Thanksgiving dinner is returning this year, complete with all the trimmings, according to Paul Gunderson, one of the event's coordinators.

Cooks, servers and dishwashers in the lower level of the south-side church are expecting a crowd of 250 on Thursday. Take-out dinners will also be available. The dinner will be served from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

More than 30 church members are involved in preparing and serving the annual dinner.

This will be the eighth Thanksgiving dinner, according to Gunderson.

"Our guests very much appreciate the dinner and the crowd preparing it love their individual jobs and responsibilities."

The church insists on not charging for the dinner.

"This our gift to the community," said Gunderson.

The preparation of the dinner starts Wednesday, with another crew arriving early Thanksgiving morning to prepare for the 11 a.m. start.

Masks will not be required.

Harvey Kiwanis

According to Sandy Teubner, the Kiwanis are close to reaching their goal of $57,000 for the new playground equipment.

"We just need a little more assistance from the community."

To date, $53,750 has already been committed. These donations have come from generous donors within Harvey as well as regional and state donations and grants, said Teubner.

In 2016, the Harvey Kiwanis raised $130,000 to build the first playground. The plan is to add a toddler playset (ages 6 months to 23 months) next summer.

"The new playset will add another dimension of play to the already dynamic playground," said Teubner, fundraising chairman. "It will give toddlers an exploration area and age-appropriate equipment for skill and muscular development."

The Kiwanis recently qualified for a St. Joseph's Community Foundation Twice Blessed donation, and that is where Harvey residents come in, said Teubner.

Any funds raised from November 15-December 31, will be matched up to $5,000 by St. Joseph's. Checks are to be made payable to St. Joseph's Community Health Foundation and mailed to address listed on the St. Joseph's website or go online at: <https://sjchfnd.com/organizations/harvey-kiwanis-club> to donate.

Funds raised for the project above the goal will be deposited into the Kiwanis project fund for future playground and youth projects.

Harvey Kiwanis annually distributes three $1,000 scholarships to area students.

Any questions on the Twice Blessed Campaign may be directed to Sandy Teubner at 701-303-0235 or teubnersandy@gmail.com.

Harvey Kiwanis Club was established on November 15, 1923. The club just celebrated its 98th anniversary this week.

Harvey council considers citizen concerns

It also allowed golf carts to be driven between a citizen's residence and a golf course, which the council discussed with a little concern. Milo Baltrusch said, "I don't have a problem with my neighbor wanting to drive her golf cart from here uptown. I do have a problem with the 6- and 8-year-old girls down the street driving a golf cart, running around this whole neighborhood like a racetrack." After further discussion of similar semi-related topics, Baltrusch and the other members approved the amendment.

Dogs at large

The fourth amendment the council looked at was for section 11.40.010, which concerns penalties for infractions in Chapter 11: Animals and Fowl. The council's main concern in last month's discussion was loose dogs. The penalties were updated to be a progressive increase for each infraction over a year's time: $25 for the first, $50 for the second and $100 for the third. Any additional infractions are "not to exceed $500" and include removal of the animal and prohibition of the violator from owning or caring for animals in Harvey. The amendment was approved.

City cleanup underway

The city recently sent letters to 18 residences about cleaning up their lots and removing non-moving vehicles.

Two citizens visited with the council to ask about the Harvey cleanup process initiated by the city. They accepted the reasons for a letter they received about their vehicle, but "there's plenty around town, plenty of others that I know have not moved at all. Plenty that have just shuffled around. Just curious what the stipulations are?" one visitor asked.

Svoboda said that they began with dilapidated vehicles that seem unregistered/unlicensed and are moving on to houses that have a lot of junk in their yards.

The visitors asked for a list of properties that have been sent letters, which Svoboda said they could provide.

Concerning the deadline on the letters, auditor Karen Nordby said, "As long as you call and talk to us, we'll give you the time that you need. If you haven't responded to us, then we'll move forward with the process." Adams added that there are vehicle removal services, on which the chamber can provide information.

Citizen opposes variance denial

Citizen Steve Bachmeier addressed the council to appeal a Board of Adjustment's denial of his request for several variances to add a storage container to his lot. The three variances would be for total lot coverage, extension beyond the allowable side space, and placing a storage container in a residential lot.

Bachmeier said that two variances were given to persons in the same zone over the past two months. "And when I asked for a variance, I was denied. I felt it was a little biased or discriminatory," he said. He read out the first two points of Zoning Ordinance 6.2406: Variance Criteria, emphasizing that all his neighbors are fine with the addition and that the painted container blends in with the building beside it.

Adams pointedly asked if he had read the ordinance on bringing storage containers into neighborhoods. He insisted that he had. For a tense moment, the two talked over one another, with Adams focusing on the ordinance and Bachmeier emphasizing the variance request. Finally, Adams stated, "Motion to deny the request."

As Bachmeier began to reply, Svoboda rapped the table to disrupt the exchange. He said, "We denied [the variance request] on the premise that you wanted to bring a storage container on the lot. It wasn't to change the building, it wasn't to add on to the building."

Bachmeier repeated that he is asking for a change in a rule, which makes the rule itself irrelevant to the discussion. Svoboda calmly replied, "The Board of Adjustments strongly suggests not to accept a storage container in any residential neighborhoods. There was a number of reasons. That wasn't the only one. The other is that you're over the line in your area."

Bachmeier asked if their decision would change if he added siding, which they said it would not. He then concluded, "So you don't even follow your own guidelines. Why do you even have them? I think you need to read your article 6.2406. Are you familiar with it?"

"We are. We're denying you because of what you want to put on there. If you want to build onto your building, come back and ask again," Adams returned.

"So I can appeal this to the county court, correct? You laugh, Ann! Go ahead and laugh," he said, making a criticism of Adam's own lot appearance. Svoboda asked him to keep things civil.

The council moved to deny his request, and Bachmeier left without another word.

City improvements

Nordby announced that the Centennial Park East walking bridge has been completed. "If you haven't been down there, please go. When they were starting on the dirt work, my heart just swelled. We've worked so hard on the bridge, and it's taken so long, and those sixth graders last year that raised all that money for it...I mean, they really had a vision to make it move forward," she said.

There are two concrete pads nearby, which will be used for disc golf and to place a porta-potty nearer to the playground. Melissa Anderson suggested the addition of cement parking stops near the bridge, to which the council seemed amenable. Nordby reported that Strata may not begin work on the Centennial Park Trail West until spring.

The council motioned to approve the application for an energy efficiency grant from the State Energy Program to replace lights in the firehall and the armory.

Nordby mentioned that the kitchen was renovated in 1988. Svoboda replied, "All the feedback that I've gotten about it has been positive. They all would like to see it renovated and brought up to standards and the future. It's definitely time."

Public Works Director Kenny Erickson reported that the PAPIs (precision approach path indicators) have been installed at the airport.

He met with Dollar General contractors concerning sewer and water placements for the new store. The council motioned to accept $1 bids for three vacant lots on Desmet Avenue, where the bidder intends to place multi-family homes.

Police workload rising

Officer Halima Kahlifa gave the report in the absence of Chief Tony Webb, who was at the Dakota Territories Conference in Bismarck to be installed on the Chiefs of Police Association.

According to Webb's reports, calls for service rose about 64% from August to September and another 11% from September to October. He predicts a further rise due to the upcoming holiday season.

Kahlifa began, "We've had a lot of criminal cases, we've had a lot of traffic stops, we're had a lot of stuff going on here and there in the city, outside of the city, assisting other agencies. We have been very, very busy lately." She rattled off some of the agencies they have been working with: McHenry County, Sheridan County and Pierce County; and federal agencies such as the Drug Enforcement Administration, FBI and Border Patrol. "We've gotten a lot of people from out of state who are cruising around on the highways that have warrants for drugs or are speeding," she said, adding there have been a lot of DUIs in general.

Kahlifa also mentioned an issue with jail space for female inmates, which Webb's report attributes to COVID restrictions. The report reads, "We had a high-speed chase Friday night with a female that we basically had to 'shop for a jail.'" Since the Rugby jail was full, they took her to Ward County. But Webb wrote that she would have been released if Minot police needed the space. Kahlifa said that they will have to start utilizing outside resources such as Ward County, Devils Lake, Jamestown, "... if possible. If not, then, you know, cite and release and they're sent on their way." Webb wrote that he would bring up the issue while in Bismarck.

In closing, Kahlifa encouraged council members to experience a ride-along with an officer. "I think it'd be eye-opening for you, so that you guys can actually see what we do. It's not just 'ride around in a car and pull people over.' It's just more than that," she said.

Wildcats defeat Hornets in Region 4 action to end HWC season

Benson County came from a set down to win three in a row and advance to the semi-finals of the Region 4 Volleyball Tournament at the Devils Lake Sportscenter on Monday, November 9.

Game one started out all HWC. Two aces from Kalyn Keller and a kill from Lexi Fike helped the Hornets open up a 8-2 lead. HWC led 12-6 before Jaylen Anderson served the Wildcats back into contention at 12-10. A kill from Desidy Schwanke helped Benson County eventually tie the game at 14 but the Hornets responded with a 5-2 run late in the game giving HWC a 24-21 advantage. Three kills in row from Schwanke tied the game at 24 but a perfectly placed kill in the back right corner from Emma Dockter and a huge kill from Keller gave game one to the Hornets 26-24.

Game Two was an epic battle to begin with as the score was tied seven times at 7-7. Back-to-back aces from Anderson helped the Wildcats score five straight as and the lead grew to 12-7. The Hornets slowly crept their way back into the game with kills from Larissa Arnold, Carysn Ziegler and Fike and tied the game at 16 all but Ashlyn Williams served six straight points to put Benson County up 23-17. Game two was sealed by a kill from Schwanke for a 25-21 win.

Game three belonged to Benson County. Schwanke had three kills and an ace as the Wildcats opened up with a 9-3 advantage. HWC pulled to within 14-11 but the Wildcats finished on an 11-3 run and ended the game on a Williams ace for the 25-14 victory.

The final game of the night was a close one to begin with. Keller had a kill and an ace and Addy Neumiller had a kill as HWC trailed 6-5. A four point Wildcat run gave them momentum as they built a 15-9 lead at the midway point. An ace from Kayme Bartz was backed up by another kill from Keller pulling the Hornets to within 15-12. Three more kills from Schwanke took the air out of HWC as the score went to 21-15. Schwanke secured her 25th and final kill of the night on a game winner as Benson County won the fourth game 25-18 and the match 3-1.

Besides Schwanke's 25 kills, she also had six blocked shots and 19 digs. The biggest contributor to Schwanke's success was Hailey Maddock who dished out 43 assists over the four games. Ashlyn Williams had five aces and McKenna Tofsrud had 31 digs to pace the Wildcats in the win. The Hornets were led by Keller's 13 kills and Bartz's 21 assists. Carsyn Ziegler and Fike each had 25 digs on the night. Fike also had nine kills and Keller added three blocks and 17 digs for the Hornets who finished the season at 9-11.

Drake-Anamoose shines in District 11

Junior Taryn Sieg and senior Riley Hauff from Drake-Anamoose were selected for the 2021 Region 6 All-Region volleyball team. The Drake-Anamoose Raiders were the only team from District 11 to be awarded 2 of the 12 spots on the All-Region Team, while Our Redeemers was the only other team from the region with the same honor.

Sally Putz, center, and Mario Bartz, right, insisted Jackie Fix put the books down and celebrate her birthday.

Jackie's surprise at the library

Jackie Fix planned to have a quiet birthday last week. However, as soon as she stepped into the Harvey Public Library and smelled the coffee, she knew that wasn't going to happen.

"Coffee is never made in the morning here. I knew something was up," said Jackie.

With the coffee ready, friends of Jackie's and the Harvey library helped Jackie celebrate her birthday last Wednesday. Sister Sally Putz baked and brought cupcakes.

The whole day went by fast, thanks to Jackie's friends," said Sally, who planned the surprise birthday party.

WELLS COUNTY DISTRICT HEALTH UNIT PRESENTS:

SCOTT GEISELHART: "SEEING IN COLOR AGAIN"

Scott has 24 years experience as a fire fighter and has been a first responder advocate since his suicide attempt and recovery in 2014. Scott has been a keynote speaker at many national events where he has spoken in front of first responders and shared about the mistakes and darkness he went through on his journey to be a survivor, peer advocate and life saver that he is today! Scott is breaking the silence about first responder mental health and suicide when it is easily swept under the rug and not acceptable to talk out loud about. Join us in hearing how he can "see in color" again!
